Illini Castings

Company Address:

1940 E. Fairchild Street, Danville, IL 61832

Company Description:

Illini Castings, an Affiliate of Mervis Industries-is an expert in refurbishing railroad castings, with over 75 years of experience. We recondition material and certify that refurbished parts meet stringent quality assurance requirements. Most of our refurbished railroad parts come from retired railcars or privately-owned railcars. The reconditioning process takes place in work booths by a trained and certified welder using approved welding procedures and gages to guarantee uniformity of all manufactured products. By using a state-of-the art BeaverMatic Furnace, Illini Castings provides a unique heat treating facility for couplers and yokes that is not readily available elsewhere. The heat treatment process also includes a Quench Tank that cools the couplers for the tempering process that brings the coupler to an "E Grade" of hardness required by the American Association of Railroads. The products are then inspected using all appropriate gages to verify they meet AAR standards. After completing this process, the material is banded for packaged for shipment.

Mervis Recycling is a full-service provider for iron, metal, plastic, fiber and all other recyclable products. Mervis Plastics provides custom grinding, colorizing, and pelletizing.

Plant Specialties:

Access to hard-to-find parts (especially side frames and bolsters). Cost savings for utilizing refurbished parts. Assurance that products are of the highest quality. Finished products include: Couplers, Yokes, Side frames and bolsters, small parts for couplers and Air brake parts.

Bachelor's Degrees @ DACC

Having an associate degree will usually get you hired. Having a bachelor's degree can help get you promoted.

You can now earn a bachelor's degree affordably and without leaving Danville...thanks to DACC's 3 + 1 partnership with Franklin University.

Equally impressive is how affordable a bachelor's degree can be through DACC. You can earn both your associate degree and your bachelor's degree for less than $30,000.

After completing an associate degree at DACC, you can continue toward a bachelor's degree by taking additional courses to total 94 credits at DACC. That's three years of community college courses at community college prices.

The fourth-year classes are all online through Franklin University. If you'd prefer to take the classes on DACC computers rather than your own computer, DACC has staff available to help you complete your program. Currently, Franklin offers bachelor's degrees at DACC in more than 36 different programs:

- B.S. ACCOUNTING
